01 / THE OPPORTUNITY

The group's most exciting thesis, moving too slowly.

The functional-medicine and longevity vision, supplements, regenerative and rejuvenation therapies, longevity protocols and medical-tourism conversion, is the group's most exciting growth thesis. It is moving slowly for one reason: the people and the facilities to execute it are not yet in place. The Abuja conversion clinic and The Lyfe Place are its scale plays, and both are waiting on the same missing piece.

02 / WHAT IT NEEDS FIRST

A COO, before a building.

This is a concierge, high-end business, and it needs a Chief Operating Officer who has run exactly that: someone who understands the patient journey from first enquiry through investigation, programme design and follow-up, who can lead a multi-modality clinical team, and who can make a premium concierge experience repeatable. The building can wait. The leader cannot.

Consult for Africa sources and vets that COO through Maarova and CadreHealth, inside and outside Nigeria, and designs the venture and the model of care in parallel, so the moment the leader lands there is something ready for them to run.

03 / HOW IT FITS

Sponsored at the top, transferred to the COO.

Because there is no business unit head for this yet, it sits with the Office of the Group CEO to sponsor, and transfers to the Functional Medicine COO the moment they are in post. C4A carries the search and the design in the meantime, so the group loses no time waiting.

The sequence is deliberate. Define the role and the model of care now, recruit into clarity, and let the Abuja clinic and The Lyfe Place become the first two homes for the venture rather than orphan projects.

04 / NEXT STEPS

Brief the role, open the search.

1. Agree the COO brief: scope, scorecard, non-negotiables.
2. C4A opens the search through Maarova and CadreHealth, inside and outside Nigeria.
3. The model of care is designed alongside the Abuja clinic, ready for the COO to inherit.
